

Enrichment Activity 1-4

Decisions and Your Character

Directions: Read the paragraph below. Then follow the directions.

The decisions you make should be based on your values. Your decisions can also show you what kind of values you have. For example, suppose you are heading to the park to play soccer with your friends. On the way, you meet a neighbor, an older adult struggling to carry her groceries up to her apartment. If you choose to help your neighbor with her groceries, you will be late for the game. If you don't stop to help, you will arrive at the game on time, but your neighbor might get hurt trying to get her bags up the stairs. Each choice reflects different values.

Use the six-step decision-making process to decide which option would be best in this scenario. Which values shape your choice?
